

THE FOOD FOREST TEA

Twenty-three Broward Schools Food Forests

We are proud to announce twenty-three schools are now part of the TEA Garden Food Forest program.

Food forests offer students access to healthy foods through cultivating a sustainable food system on campus and outdoor classroom time to connect with nature.

The 2023-2024 application window for new schools will open in September. Be on the lookout for the pivot memo.

TEA JAM Student Permaculture Convergence

Leadership Broward selected the TEA Garden Food Forest as their community project.

On April 4th, over one hundred K-12 students descended on Snyder Park in Ft. Lauderdale for a day of food forest sessions, community service and fun!

Due to the success of the event, we are planning to make it an annual event.

National Food Forest Movement

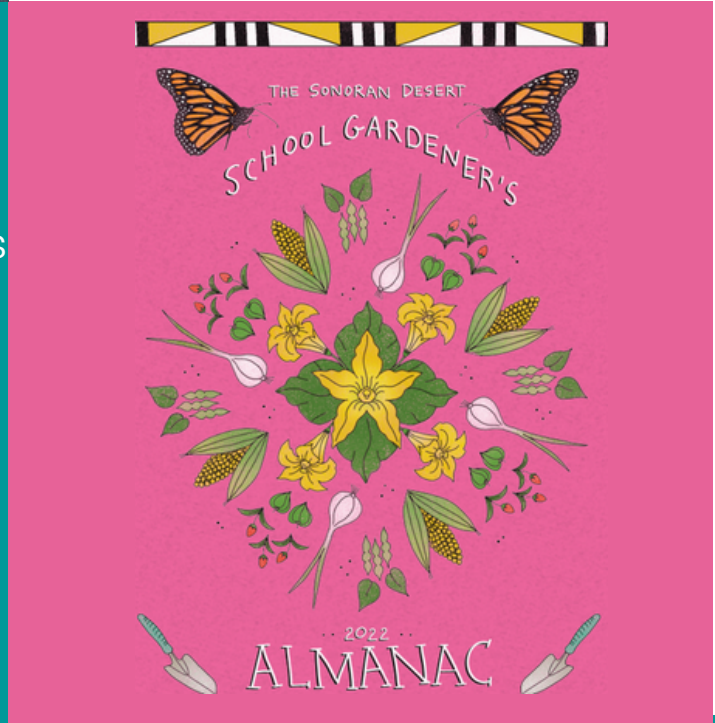

Nationwide momentum has been building around the food forests as part of a sustainable food system.

Instructional Facilitator, Adrian Carter, along with our partners from the Miami Ed Fund, Debbi LaBelle and Eddie Recinos, presented about School Food Forests at the National Green Schools Conference in New Orleans.

Additionally, the New York Times Climate Report featured an article on food forests as a climate solution. The article included Park Ridge Elementary School and Driftwood Middle School's food forest along with our Grant Facilitator, Elaine Fiore.

2022-2023 Impacts

- 13,000+ students learned food forest lessons from our Instructional Facilitators
- 2,500+ students, teachers, parents installed their school food forests
- 350+ parents, teachers, students participated in community meetings to design and vote on plants

South Florida School Food Forest Almanac coming...

Through a partnership with ASU and University of Arizona, teachers and community members will be contributing to the first ever South Florida School Food Forest Almanac. Recipes, medicinal uses for plants, poetry and how to's will be included. More details in the Fall.

Contact Us:

browardstem@browardschools.com

Follow us

@BrowardStem

Tag Us #FoodForestTEA

